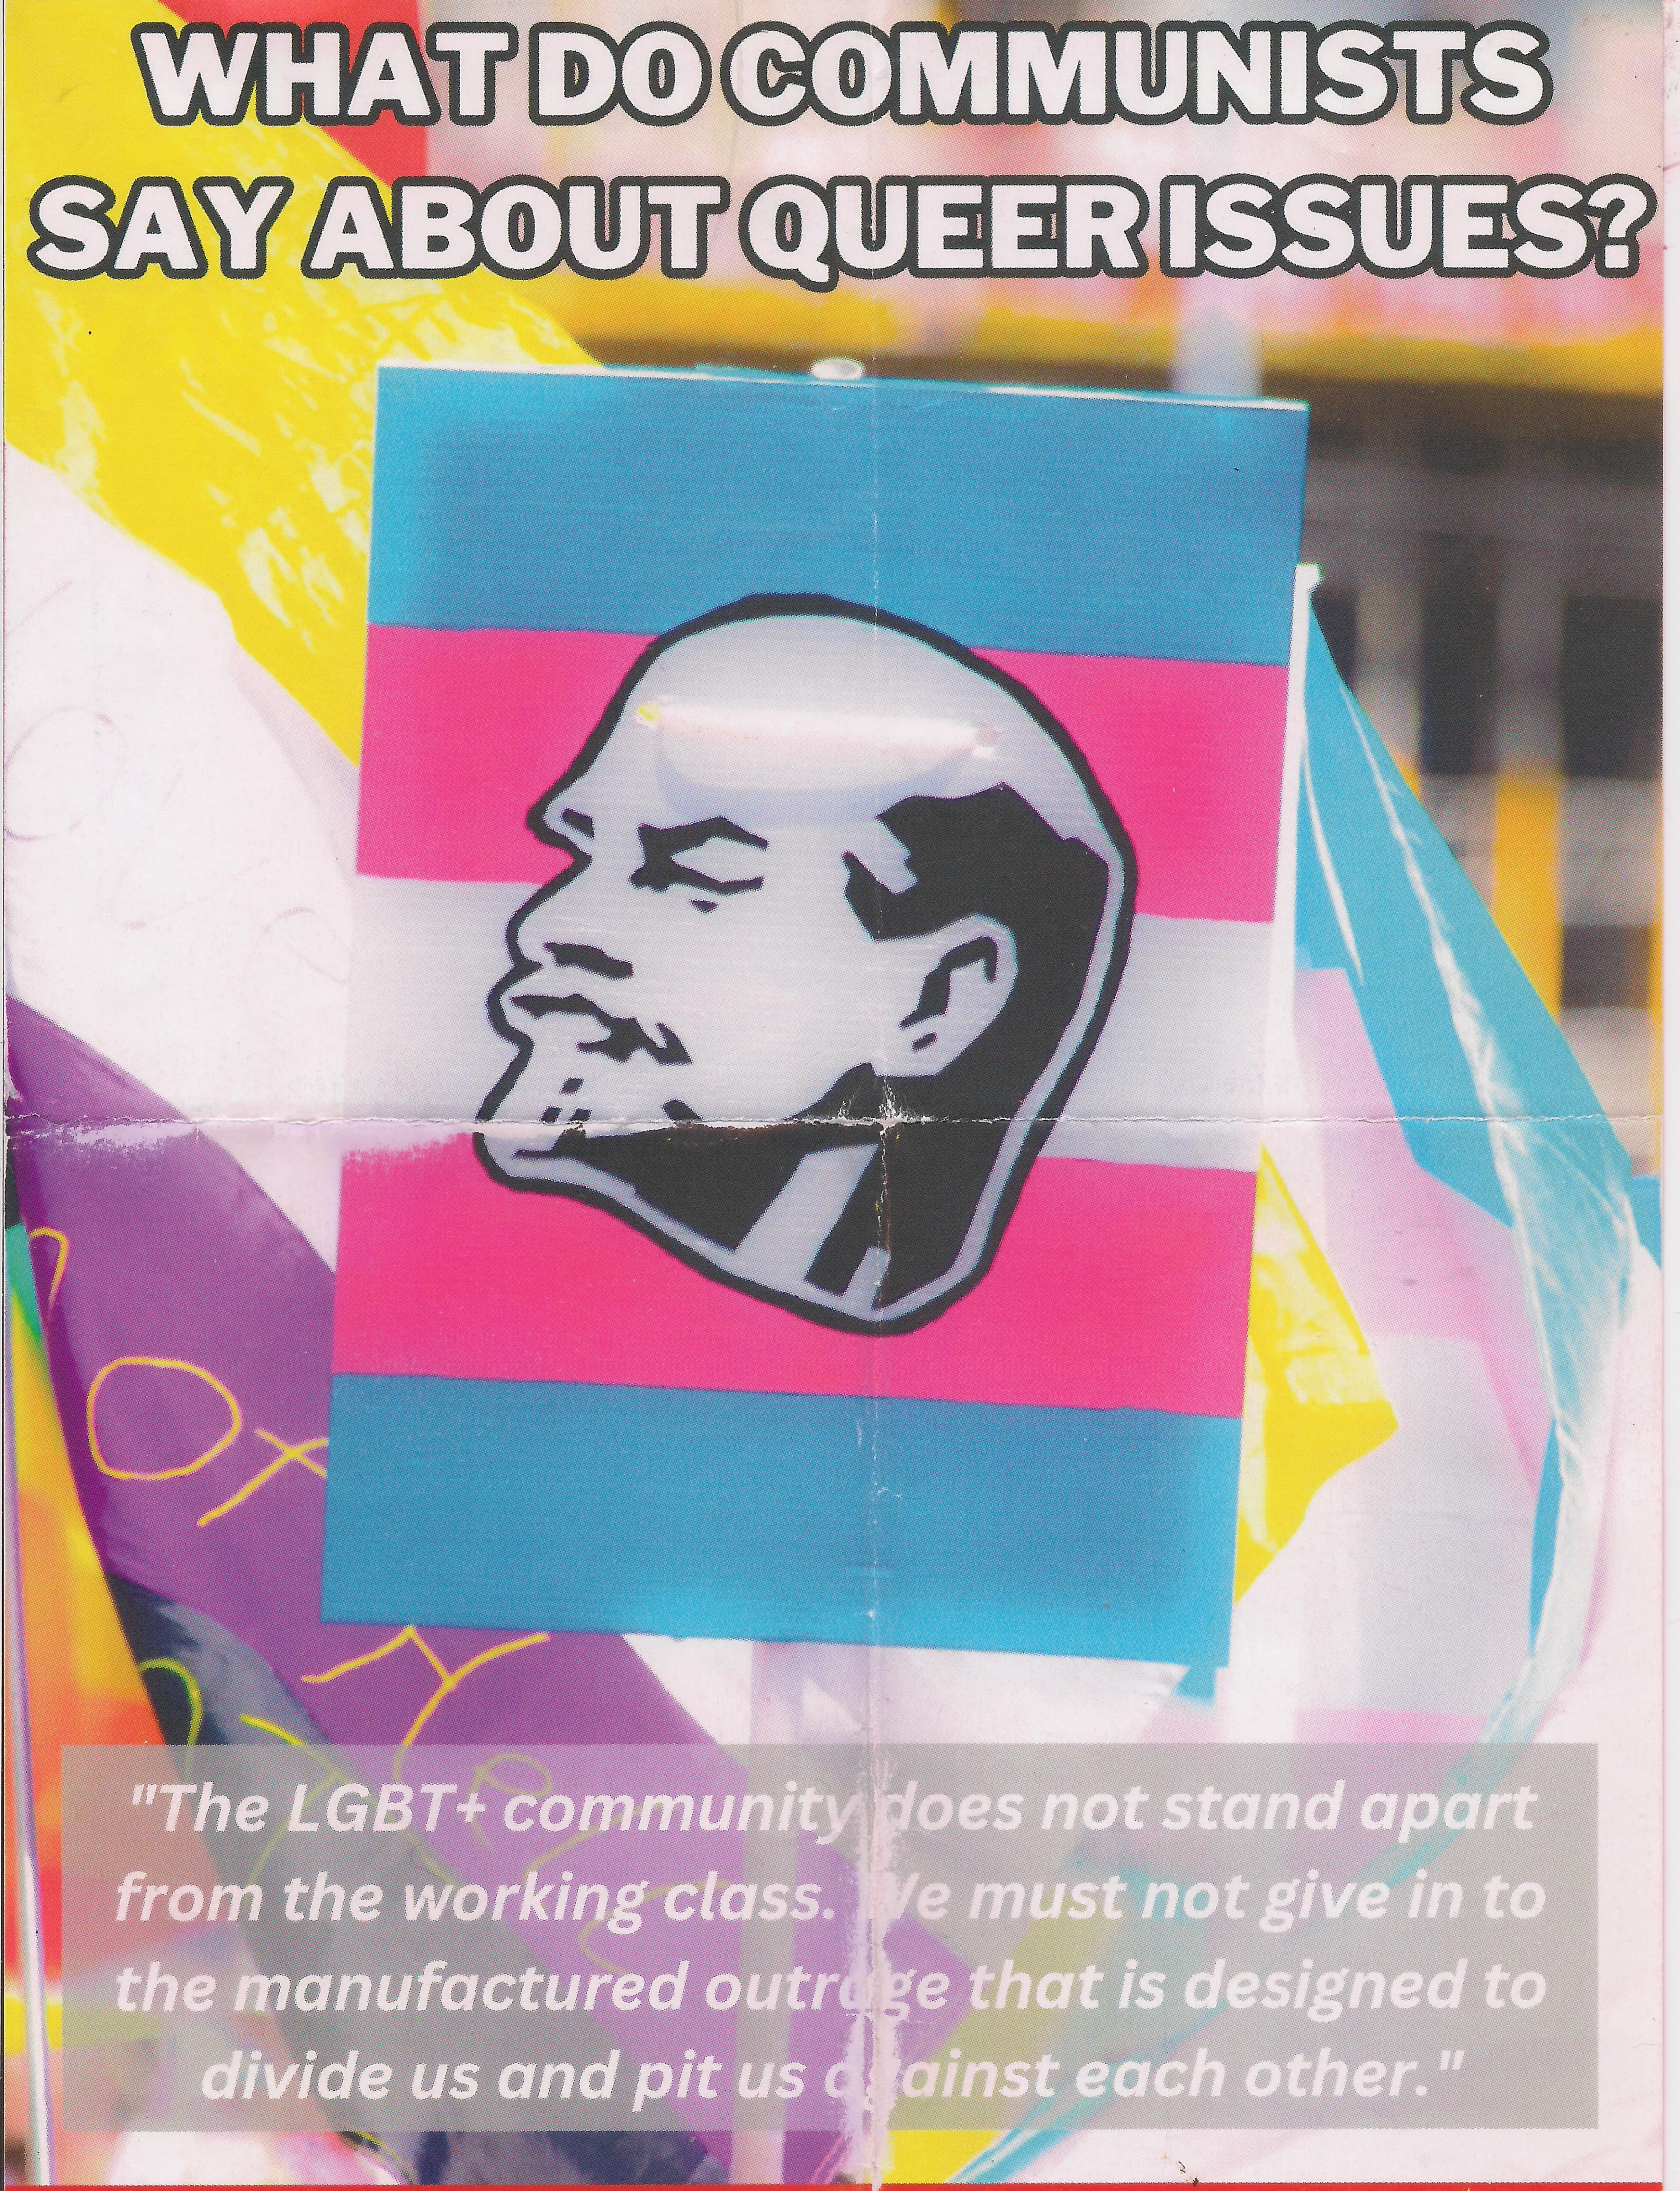
WHAT DO COMMUNISTS SAY ABOUT QUEER ISSUES?



"The LGBT+ community does not stand apart from the working class. We must not give in to the manufactured outrage that is designed to divide us and pit us against each other."

Building beyond the fragments of identity

The ruling class is more than happy to spread racism, sexism, misogyny, homophobia, transphobia, sectarianism, and any and all forms of bigotry as a means of dividing the working class. The simple reason is this: a divided class cannot fight a united struggle. We need to steadfastly oppose all forms of prejudice and bigotry, and affirm the central role of the working class, a class of all colours, religions, sexualities, and gender identities, in the revolutionary struggle.

The LGBT+ community does not stand apart from the working class. We recognise that the LGBT+ community is greatly, and sometimes more acutely affected by class issues such as access to healthcare, mental healthcare, housing, public safety, and employment, and we will support the community on these issues.
